PINNING TRADITION

The School of Nursing pin is a distinctive mark, rich in history and meaning. It can be traced to heraldry, which is the system of devising and granting insignias for Coats of Arms. The Pinning Ceremony is a time-honored nursing school tradition, dating back to 1855 when Florence Nightingale was awarded a brooch by England's Queen Victoria for her efforts in the Crimean War. It signifies the integrity and tradition of badges worn by the early healers and crusaders of care. Over the course of time, the Pinning Ceremony has evolved and for most, marks the passage from that of student nurse role to the practice role, and for some, the attainment of advanced education.

Each school adopts its own symbol to indicate the excellent nursing education the student received. In the Pinning Ceremony performed today, each baccalaureate student may receive a pin that proudly displays Northeastern University's motto Lux Veritas Virtus. Regardless of where their new careers in nursing take them, their pins will let their colleagues and patients know where they earned their nursing credentials. The pin also signifies the acceptance of the many responsibilities incumbent upon those entering into the profession and practice of nursing. Wearing of the nursing pin is a source of pride

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Anne H. Gross, PhD, RN, FAAN

Dr. Anne Gross, who currently serves as the Senior Vice President for Patient Care Services, Chief Nursing Officer and Ning Zhao Chair of Nursing at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, is responsible for clinical and research nursing practice, including the inpatient, outpatient, and community practice settings. She oversees the Center for Clinical and Professional Development; the Cantor Center for Nursing and Patient Care Services Research; patient and family programs and other clinical services across the Dana-Farber enterprise.

Her professional contributions have improved patient access to healthcare and strengthened interdisciplinary teamwork to improve the quality and safety of oncology care. Since joining Dana-Farber in 2002, Dr. Gross has led implementations of primary nursing and professional shared governance models and the organization's 5th consecutive Magnet Designation in 2024. She developed pipeline and fellowship programs in collaboration with academic partners to ensure the future of oncology nursing and joint faculty positions to advance nursing science. She has also secured funding to support positive practice environments focused on staff wellness and resilience.

Nationally, Dr. Gross has led initiatives and served on boards and committees in professional organizations such as the Oncology Nursing Society, the National Cancer Center Network, the Oncology Nursing Foundation, and the Alliance of Dedicated Cancer Centers. She is a Fellow in the American Academy of Nursing.

Dr. Gross received her Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree from St. Louis University, her Master's degree in Nursing and Community Health from Boston College, and her PhD in Nursing and Health Policy from the University of Massachusetts.
